

Dear Sirs: I'm requesting that K-LOVE be able to continue broadcasting as it has been able to do for 20 years, using FM translators. It's come to my attention that low power stations could be given priority over K-LOVE. I oppose this on several counts. For one, K-LOVE has been the only consistent source of Christian Contemporary music here. A local station put on this same format within the last year or so and then yanked it after just a few months. K-LOVE truly is still "local" because it brings the music and messages that people in my community would have to do without if it did not exist. I applaud "local programing" in theory, but the truth is that only a couple of the many radio stations available here even make a small attempt at local news. And let's face it, with companies like Clear Channel and others owning nearly all the stations, "local" doesn't mean what it used to. Do not disrupt K-LOVE's broadcast operations. This is a quality station that has it all: news, music, information, that is meaningful to all who hear it. It is a great community service that we will suffer without, if the FCC acts wrongly and takes it away.
